

Model Comparison Paper

Ian Douglas, Michelle VanTeigham† & Paul A. Bloom†

November 6, 2019

METHODS

The sample we analyzed derived from a longitudinal study of 344 youth between the ages of 3 and 18 whose early caregiving experiences involved institutional care (i.e., adoption or foster care,  $N = 115$ ) or whose biological families raised them ( $N = 229$ ). The sample retained for this study included the first ( $N = 117$ ) or second ( $N = 39$ ) waves of the above, whichever was the first for each participant. All participants recruited at the third wave were excluded because a different MRI machine was used.